This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at St. John's Episcopal church occurred the funeral of Edward Gehring, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Gehring, who died on Monday. The services were conducted by Rev. A. G. Harrison, and were very largely attended by the young friends of the deceased. Interment was in Fairview cemetery.

Manager Houston of the Albuquerque Athletic association football team which will meet the American Lumber company team in a game Sunday afternoon at Traction park, today announced that he had made arrangements for the roping of the griffon, which will be much appreciated by the crowd and players. Both teams are in good shape and a fine game is promised for Sunday.

W. E. Grimmer, of the Albuquerque Steam Laundry today received a telegram from Chicago, announcing the death of his father. The deceased was seventy-one years of age and a pioneer resident of the Windy City. Only two months ago Mr. Grimmer was called to Chicago by the death of his mother, and this second affliction is indeed a sad blow. Mr. Grimmer will not be able to attend the funeral owing to the great distance of Albuquerque from Chicago.

Colonel W. H. Greer, who has some experience himself in getting cars to ship cattle to the markets from the ranges of the Victoria Land & Cattle company, will leave tonight for southern New Mexico, and after seeing $3000 cattle on the drive from southern Grant and Luna counties to the company's pasture near Engle, he will proceed to Fronteras, Mexico, where the company also owns a big ranch. He expects to be absent a week or ten days.

"THE CHAPERONS" PROVE HIT OF THE SEASON

By far the best production that has come to the Elks' theater this season was "The Chaperons" last night. The theater was literally packed, and the large audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance was evidenced by the frequent and vigorous applause it gave the company.

The company is composed of about thirty-five people, among them being several very good voices. The girls are not all pretty, but they are better looking than the average bunch of show girls who manage to visit Albuquerque, and if anything, their voices are better. The male chorus sings exceptionally well and was compelled to respond to two encores. Perhaps looks have been sacrificed for voice in "The Chaperons," but nobody complained, for while it is pleasing to look at a boy of pretty girls prouling around the stage in fancy costumes, it is more pleasing to listen to good voices in the same girls even if the appearances are not so fascinating. And there was no fault to find with the voices of the members of "The Chaperons," especially with the chorus.

The company, besides the chorus, carries an array of pretty costumes, several people who say and do funny things, and some of the stunts are very old, but they are said to have been original with "The Chaperons," and were old simply because the company had never been here before and some other company had stolen the stuff and sprung it first. There are several individual stars in the cast, and among these Harry Ladell stands alone. He does some very clever dancing and gets off a number of extremely ridiculous acrobatic stunts, that kept the house in a continuous uproar whenever he appeared on the stage. Others deserving of special mention are George Lydecker, Elyth Valmeda, Doris Goodwin, Ruth Lloyd, as the professional Paris chaperon; John Price, as the Irish subway contractor, and Adam Hoge, the American port packer. The chorus, "The Whole Dam Family," was a very accurate production of the now famous picture by that name, even to the youngest member of the family, and made a hit.

On the whole, those who purchased tickets for last night's show, were far from disappointed, and it is certain that Manager Matson was happy, as every seat in the house was sold, and before the curtain went up the sign, "standing room only," was posted in the theater. It is hoped by the managers that many more equally as good attractions have been booked for the 1905-06 season by the management.
